CFP® - Certified Financial Planner – 1995

A Certified Financial Planner (CFP) is required to meet the following initial certification requirements (known as the four “Es”):

- Education
- Examination
- Experience
- Ethics

These four components are briefly described below:

Education

The first step to CFP® certification is to acquire the knowledge required to deliver professional, competent and ethical financial planning services to clients, as outlined in the major personal financial planning topic areas identified by CFP Board. The CFP Board’s coursework component requires the completion of a college-level program of study in personal financial planning. One must also have earned a bachelor’s degree (or higher) from an accredited college or university in order to obtain CFP® certification. The CFP Board does not grant equivalencies or exceptions to the bachelor’s degree education requirement.

Examination

After successfully meeting the education coursework requirement, a candidate will be eligible to register for the CFP® Certification Examination. The CFP® Certification Examination assesses your ability to apply your financial planning knowledge, in an integrated format, to financial planning situations. Combined with the education, experience, and ethics requirements, it assures the public that CFPs’ have met a level of competency appropriate for professional practice.

Experience

Because CFP® certification indicates to the public your ability to provide financial planning without supervision, CFP Board requires you to have 6,000 hours of experience may be acquired through a variety of activities and professional settings including personal delivery, supervision, direct support, indirect support or teaching.

Ethics

CFP® professionals agree to adhere to the high standards of ethics and practice outline in CFP Board's Standards of Professional Conduct and to acknowledge CFP Board's right to enforce them through its Disciplinary Rules and Procedures. When a candidate has completed the education, examination and experience components of the CFP® certification process, they will be directed to complete a CFP® Certification Application on which they will be asked to disclose information about their background, including involvement in any criminal, civil, governmental, or self-regulatory agency proceeding or inquiry, bankruptcy, customer complaint, filing, termination/internal reviews conducted by an employer or firm. CFP Board conducts a detailed background check for all candidates, including review of any disclosures made on the CFP® Certification Application. Authorization to use the CFP® marks will not be approved until the background check and any investigation are concluded successfully.
